At Every Point.

The terrific battle now in its 18th day in the Aisne district to the north of Paris, continues to rage but its violence is generally held to portend a decisive result in the near future.

Furious hand to hand fighting is going on and the losses to both the Allies and the German armies are enormous.

Several times the Germans held their masses of troops against the French left wing but in every case they were repulsed according to the official announcement issued by the French war department this afternoon.

In the center heavy cannonading is going on, while between the Argonne forests and the river Meuse the Allies have made some progress. The German general staff in Berlin, advises say, claims that the situation on French soil has not changed, and it is emphatically denied that the battle at any point of the line is going in favor of the Allies.

Galicja has been almost cleared of Austrians according to an announcement at Petrograd, and the Russians crossing the Carpathian mountains have entered Hungary and are driving back the Austrian reinforcements sent against them. The invaders swept across the mountains into the Ungvar district which is about 180 miles north of Buda Pest, the Hungarian capital.

Germans estimated about 150,000 are reported from Rotterdam to be prepared for a siege of the Belgian fortress of Antwerp.

Austrian siege guns have been brought up to take the places of the large German guns which are now being used in the fighting in the French district of Aisne.

A Belgian official communication states that German heavy artillery fire directed at two forts ten miles of Antwerp, ceased when the forts replied to the bombardment.

The activity of a Zeppelin dirigible stretches over a wide area. Six bombs were hurled today at two Belgian towns, in one of which a convent was damaged and another German airship created a panic at the town of Bialystok, sixty miles across the Russian frontier.

Japanese are drawing the military cordon closer around the German territory of Kiao Chow in the Chinese province of Chan-Tung.

today announces that the Japanese are driving the Germans toward Tsing Tau and that the Japanese fleet aided by the army, bombarded the Ilits forts.

London, Sept. 23.—The 17th day of the battle of the Aisne thus far, has brought no decisive results but all indications continue to point to an approaching end of the heroic struggle.

Hand to hand fighting now raging with such fury is bound, it is generally held, to decide the issue.

Meanwhile the fog which the French official report yesterday announced had prevented operations in the Woivre district cover metaphorically the rest of the long battle line.

Germans Thrown Back.
All that the public is permitted to know from the Allied side is that so far the British and French armies have held their grip on their positions and have consistently thrown back the masses of Germans who have bravely and incessantly hurled on them in an attempt to break through the main barrier.

In Berlin it is asserted there has been no change in the situation and the claim that the scales had been turned slightly in their favor has been denied.

The losses of the opposing army in the last few days of the fierce combat have been colossal. Even the official reports contain a gruesome picture of thousands of dead and wounded lying in the fire swept zone between the two armies and every fresh assault is adding to the ghastly litter.

Exchange Prisoners.
The British and German governments have begun exchanging lists of prisoners of war. This being done through Walter H. Page, the American ambassador in London and is preparatory to arranging an actual exchange of prisoners.

The first list was passed through the American embassy today. Up to the present time these exchanges have been arranged only for women and children and men over fifty years of age or less than 15, or men physically disabled.

Cleared Galicja.
A Petrograd dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company states that an army messenger has announced that the Russians almost completely cleared Galicja of the enemy, who had taken refuge in the passes of the Carpathian mountains.

An eye witness states that two German army corps took part in the battle of Jaroslavl. According to the same dispatch the Russians had to take most of the enemy's trenches at the point of the bayonet.

Official Victory.
An official communication issued at Budapest according to a Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company, admits that the Russians have succeeded in crossing the Hungarian border and have entered the Ungvar district despite the fact that reinforcements have been sent against them.

Ung is a country in the northeast part of Hungary.

French Report.
Paris, Sept. 23.—The comparative calm on the French battle line yesterday after Sunday's storm of shot and shell was a surprise. It was supposed that the extreme violence of the German attack meant a determination to finish the campaign at the Aisne by breaking the allies' lines at all costs and the pressure it was expected would continue, especially on the allies' left, where the Germans had brought up reinforcements.

Attacked Center.
The center, however, was the only point seriously attacked, probably at the suggestion that they were weak and had no reinforcements. The military operations at the extreme east of the Vosges and in Alsace have been hindered by bad weather as there is snow on the heights and in the valleys. The Rhine is much swollen.

The Left Wing.
"On our left wing along the river Somme," the French official statement issued this afternoon, said, "determines the numerous attacks which the allies repulsed."

The text of the statement is as follows: "First—On our left wing to the north of the Somme and between the Somme and the Aisne, the enemy, both on Sunday and Monday, delivered several attacks, which have been repulsed. To the north of the Aisne there has been no change."

GERMAN CHANCELLOR DECLARES ENGLAND SPURNED ADVANCES

Von Bethmann-Hollweg in Delayed Statement Puts Blame For Present War Upon Great Britain.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Sept. 23.—Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Chancellor, early in September made a formal statement to the Reichstag in which he declared that the outbreak of the war was due to the failure of England to accept German proposals for peace. He stated that the German government had made every effort to bring about a peaceful settlement, but that England had spurned all advances and had instead declared war on Germany.

General Headquarters. Sept. 2.—"I do not know what is thought of this war in America," the German Chancellor said in a statement to the Reichstag. "The fact is that the war has been declared by England, and it is the duty of Germany to defend herself against the aggression of England."

Puts Blame on England.
"These efforts had to be futile," the Chancellor said, "because England had already declared war on Germany. It is the duty of Germany to defend herself against the aggression of England."

Tells of Shelling.
Washington, Sept. 23.—A dispatch from Antwerp, the correspondent of the Evening News says, shelling of Malines by the Germans continued throughout the night. Most of the streets are encumbered with the wreckage of burned buildings.

Dropped Bombs.
A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam says that further forays have been made by Zeppelin aeroplanes. Four bombs were dropped on Deynse, nine miles southwest of Ghent and two on the city of Ghent itself.

Official Word.
London.—An official communication given out by the Belgian government is contained in an Antwerp dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company. It says: "After bombarding Malines, fourteen miles southeast of Antwerp, the Germans under cover of night re-entered the unoccupied towns, but have now resumed their march therefrom."

Keep Close Watch.
As a direct result of this move the Dutch authorities along the Scheldt have increased their watchfulness for during a siege of Antwerp England might like to send reinforcements through the Dutch Scheldt which would be a breach of neutrality.

While on the other hand a German victory would bring down the mouth of the Scheldt, a base from which to attack the British naval forces on the North Sea.

Moral Scruple. However, the English policy does not know. And thus the English people who always posed as the protagonists of Freedom and Right has allied itself with Russia, the representative of the most terrible spiritual or no religious freedom, that tramples upon the freedom of peoples as well as of individuals. Already England is beginning to recognize that she has made a mistake in her calculations, and that Germany will master her enemies. She is therefore trying by the prettiness means to injure Germany as much as possible in her commerce and colonies.

Japan, regardless of the consequences to the cultural community of the white race, to a pillaging expedition against Kiao-Chow and leading the negroes in Africa to fight against the Germans in the colonies.

Having strangled the news service of Germany to the whole world and having opened the campaign against us with a falsehood, England will tell you tomorrow that the German troops burned down Belgian villages and cities, but will pass over a silence the fact that Belgian girls gouged out the eyes of German soldiers, that the German soldiers have invited our officers to dinner, and shot and killed them across the table. Contrary to all international law the whole civilian population of Belgium was called out in order to have the first shown friendliness, carried on in the rear of our troops a terrible warfare with concealed weapons.

"Atrocities" in Belgium.
"Belgian women cut the throats of soldiers who they had quartered in their homes while they were sleeping. England also will say nothing of the four English and French despite all conventions and their hypocritical proclamations of humanity, which can be seen here in their original packing as they were found on French and English prisoners of war."

"The Emperor has authorized me to say all this and to state that he has full confidence in the sense of justice of the American people which will not allow itself to be deceived through the war of falsehood which our enemies are conducting against us."

The statement of the Chancellor concludes as follows: "Every one who has lived in Germany since the outbreak of the war has been able to witness the great moral uprising of all Germans who, pressed hard on all sides, cheerfully take the field for the defense of their rights and their existence; every one knows that this people is not capable of any unnecessary cruelty or of any brutality. We will win, thank to the great moral strength which our just cause gives to our troops, and in the end the greatest falsehood will be able to obscure our victories as little as they do our rights."

"In Selesia the enemy has been considerably strengthened and is manifesting great activity."
"The Austrian sorties from Przemyśl remain unsuccessful."

MAYOR OF BRUSSELS HAS BEEN RELEASED BY GERMAN OFFICER

Military Commander at Belgium Capital Releases Burgomaster Max Following Arrest Yesterday.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Sept. 23.—Burgomaster Max of Brussels, who was arrested yesterday by the German military governor on the charge that he had ordered the banks to close to prevent the payment of the indemnity which was due, has been released according to the announcement of a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company. The release followed the payment to the Germans of 30,000,000 francs ($6,000,000). The war tax levied against Brussels after the Germans had occupied the Belgian capital was paid at the time to be $40,000,000.

The release of Burgomaster Max again gives the picturesque mayor of the captured Belgian capital a chance to serve as intermediary between his people and the Germans, a position which he had filled with extraordinary originality.

When the invaders entered the city he procured very little harm from the Germans by guaranteeing good behavior on the part of his people. By means of posters distributed on the walls of the city he conveyed orders and was able to keep the city in a state of order. He has been arrested, and when this was forbidden he mounted the steps of the town hall every morning and read out the Belgian version of the war news.

The daily dispatches printed in official German news.

Burgomaster Max was put in jail from which he had just been released, over a dispute on the question of the payment of the indemnity demanded by the Germans.

German Reports Show Jap Troops Force Kaiser's Forces to Retreat—Fort Bombed by Cruiser Squadron.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Peking, China, Sept. 23.—The Germans in Kiao Chow have evacuated the Waldersee line of defense before an overwhelming force of the enemy. The Germans have now completely evacuated the line. This information is contained in a dispatch received here from a German source at Tsingtau, Chan-Tung, which evidently is a wireless communication from the Japanese.

The Japanese armored cruiser squadron bombarded Tsingtau Monday without doing damage.

Japanese official reports corroborate the foregoing and explain that the engagement occurred Monday morning. They declare further that the Germans are back on their defensive line, and that the Japanese are now advancing.

Three German warships inside Tsingtau harbor and two Japanese aeroplanes participated in the fighting.

Tokio, Sept. 23.—An official announcement today concerning the proposed events in Kiao Chow says: "Japanese forces during the night of Sept. 27 drove the enemy in the direction of Tsingtau."

The Japanese losses are 150. The German losses are not known, but fifty men and four machine guns were captured. This action, which was speedier than anticipated, has exceeded the general attack.

"The fleet has attacked the little forts, effectively aided by the army."

London.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company from Cape Town says that the premier of the Transvaal, General Botha, has addressed a speech to 5,000 people in the town of Bank in the Transvaal, General Botha, premier of South Africa, emphasized the necessity of loyalty to the British empire.

Declaring that the policy of neutrality was absolute nonsense, he pointed out that if a German warship came to Durban and impounded the goods of the colony, it would help the people very little to say that they were neutral.

General Botha said that he was animated with a sincere love for his people and desired to put the position before them. There were only two cases open before them he said. First, loyalty and help, and second, disloyalty and treason.

The premier, however, said, "I went on to say, had for once stuck his head too far out and was in grave danger of being trodden upon."

I have your letter, and I am so glad that you found everything satisfactory.

When you asked me, before you left town so hurriedly, to buy you a few of the things you needed, and send them on to you, the commission rather frightened me—you are so particular. Shall I tell you what I did?

First, I made out a list of just what I wanted, and then I studied very carefully the advertising columns of the daily newspapers. I compared the prices and values, checking off from my list the things that I wanted, and then I shopped.

And—here is the great wonder of it—I found those advertising pages to be GUIDES! I could never have accomplished what I did without them.

It has convinced me that even experience in shopping is not absolutely necessary if one will only make a close study of the daily newspapers.

ALLIES CLAIM GAINS IN BATTLE OF AISNE

SCANTY NEWS FROM FRONT

ANGLO-FRENCH FORCES

REPORT.

GERMAN CENTER HOLDS
Kaiser's Armies Wage Desperate Fight to Counteract Reported Losses on The Eastern Frontier.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Sept. 23.—In his review of the situation of the battle in northern France, the Paris correspondent of the Times says:

"The French left continues to make progress. On the other hand the Germans have obtained no appreciable advantage from their success in the west of the Aisne. The French they made is too narrow to prevent the passage of the Meuse by forces in sufficient numbers. Nothing decisive has yet occurred, but the Germans have no doubt that the advantage of the allies rather than to the enemy. The furious battle of the Aisne is a soldier's battle in the narrowest sense of the word, and the final victory must be attained by the courage and tenacity of the infantry. On no point along the gigantic line has the Anglo-French walls been pierced."

German Center Holds.
"The German center still holds strongly. In fact, it seems clear as pointed out by Colonel Rousset, the military critic in the Liberty, that the Germans have received orders to break through the French line anywhere and at any costs. The Russian steam roller has come too close to be any longer guarded, and it is felt by the German general staff that a decisive success must be won against the allies in the western theatre of war, in order that Germany may be able to turn its attention to the advance of the Russians in the eastern war theatre."

"The enemy continues to fight with great fury at certain points of the line so the actions generally left intense along the immense battle front. A narrow strip of territory which they succeeded in gaining as the result of violent action was immediately recaptured by the allies who captured cannon, prisoners and flags."

Activity of Russians.
Another apparent lull along the western battle line of the Aisne has caused the enemy to turn again to shift to the east. The whereabouts and strength of the Russian army is still somewhat of a mystery. The Russian advance is still slow, and the German line is still holding. The latest official communication from Paris reports that condition on the allied left wing is favorable while the troops in the center have successfully repulsed all attempts to break the French line."

"Oh, Hello, Hello, Hello!"
Morris Feldman of 807 Washington street, Brooklyn, was in the men's court on a charge of peddling without a license, says the New York Tribune. Patrolman McMahon said he found the prisoner at Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street selling parrots. "Hello, oh, hello," said a small yellow bird, climbing out of Feldman's pocket. "What's that?" demanded Magistrate House. "Hello, hello-o" said the parrot cheerfully. The magistrate smiled and regarded the bird more kindly. But the moment he turned to resume the case the same syllables, differently accented, smote his ear. "Hello, oh hello, hello—" "Feldman, I fine you two dollars," snapped the magistrate.

INDORSE MOVEMENT TO AID FARM BOYS

COMMERCIAL CLUB GIVES CO-OPERATION TO COUNTY Y. M. C. A. WORK.

MEANS MUCH TO CITY

Hope to Create a Community of Interest Between City and Country, Resulting in Mutual Benefit.

The combined meeting of the directors of the Janesville Commercial club yesterday at the Grand Hotel developed a feeling of harmony in interest which augurs well for the future welfare of the entire Y. M. C. A. county movement.

President George S. Parker of the Commercial club, in his address of welcome, referred to the fact that the situation could not be developed. In making the boy see the broader side of life, taking him out of the narrower surroundings, he gave contentment with farm life. The Janesville Commercial club, aside from other reasons, was mindful of the fact that a financial return would come because of this work among the boys. A. E. Matheson, president of the Y. M. C. A., director, spoke of the uplift to the young people through the work which was being conducted under the leadership of Mr. Markham who has been a great help to the boys. The broadening out of the boys' interests, the creation of enthusiasm for framework has made possible such contests as the corn contest which is now closing under the supervision of the Commercial club.

The up-building of the boy in the country results in a profit for every body. Mr. Matheson related out. The young men are rising to a higher moral standard and are gaining a better opinion of themselves. He referred to an instance he had seen recently. He pointed out several boys in the county playing ball Sunday afternoon who had not taken the trouble to even change their clothing. Demonstrating that they had not brought to a realization of the better things and not appreciative of the significance of Sunday.

J. A. Craig referred to the phase of the work which would bring various people of the county more closely together and would have a tendency to eliminate the wall-between houses in that it meant a keener appreciation of the home. He thought that an invisible barrier had been erected between city and country heretofore which is now gradually being eliminated. A more thorough interchange of thought, ideas and trade relations would naturally make city and country all one. He referred to the city of Trenton, Mo., a county seat, where the city limits had been extended ten or twelve miles in various directions and the people referred to the city as "our town" because the city had come into the country. The work of this community is receiving wide mention among magazines, community interests and publications generally. He believed that the farm as a wealth producing interest was the most essential item which the town had to deal with and the cities and towns generally could well afford to cultivate that interest.

L. Z. McVay, in speaking for the county Y. M. C. A. directors, said that to help the boy become a leader of men was one of the greatest aspirations with which to equip a boy. If the boy could be made to think that his work and his life meant something, it would put him on a plane from which greater things could be expected. The work among the boys demonstrated to them the broad side of life. A boy is familiar with the Creator of all things. He referred to the extent of the county Y. M. C. A.; the national and state organizations were upheld purely by gifts and contributions. The county Y. M. C. A. was kept up by subscriptions and that $2,000 annually was necessary to carry on the work in Rock county. The county association could use more funds to better carry on the work. He believed that this will mean the up-building of a stronger race of men.

A. B. West spoke of the forces in the field which gave the strength and impetus to the forward movement among the country young people. He thought that the outcome of the work meant better morality, better schools, better home life. He referred to the corn contest and his interest in the affair and suggested that an alfalfa contest might also be considered in connection with the work for the coming year. He thought that a community stock breeders' association might be a matter for consideration later on. He referred to the wide work which is being carried on in connection with farm management and the fact that Prof. A. T. Otis of the Agricultural department of the university is actively engaged in this movement. He said that Prof. Otis was very anxious to come to Rock county and make this vicinity the center of the work.

L. A. Markham, secretary of the county Y. M. C. A. spoke briefly. President Parker spoke of the possibility that a road contest might come up for consideration at some future date. A subscription paper is being circulated to provide an automobile for Secretary Markham for use in his work. At present he makes many of his county trips on foot. There were present of the county Y. M. C. A. the following directors: J. Z. McVay, Rock Prairie; P. M. Spicer, Tiffany; Solon Coomer, Clinton; J. F. Kemmerer, Clinton; S. M. Smith, E. Matheson, A. Gardner, Janesville; A. E. Whitford, Milton; A. S. Maxon, E. M. Holston, A. N. West, Milton Junction; L. A. Markham, Janesville.

ATWOOD PLAYING END ON CARROLL ELEVEN

Janesville Product Makes Good on College Football Squad—Played in Game Last Saturday.

That Edward Atwood, two years high school basketball star at the local high school, is making good on the Carroll college football eleven this fall, is the opinion of the Carroll coach, according to word received here recently, and through the press accounts of the Carroll-South Division contest, in which the former won, 47 to 0 last Saturday.

"Poller, Carroll's Indian quarterback, played the best game for Carroll, while Kellar at fullback and Atwood at end played fine games," says the Milwaukee Journal, in giving an account of the game. Dulton, the other local aspirant for a place on the college squad at Waubesa, will not be able to play for a few weeks at least. He entered Carroll with some preparatory work to finish, and until he has completed the work he will be exempt from playing. He has an excellent chance to gain a backfield position, when he finishes his work.

It is expected Atwood will hold an end position throughout the season. His rangy build, his speed and his knowledge of the passing game should make him a star at the extremely position.

PUBLIC LIBRARY AN AID TO THE SCHOOLS

Small Libraries of Books to Interest Students Are in Possession of Teachers.

It may be of interest to parents to know of the work done by the public library, through the schools. If you live so far away from the center of the city that your child is unable to come to the library, he may obtain a book at school. During the past week small libraries have been sent to all the school rooms in the city. To further encourage the children to read helpful, wholesome books, extra credit is given to those who read any nine, chosen from a list of recommended books. Some children prefer to come to the library where they may have a wider selection of books. That they appreciate their attractive room, is evidenced by the fact that every afternoon as soon as school closes, until six o'clock, this room is crowded with children. Here everything is done for them. The librarian who has been trained for this work helps them to choose their books if they need suggestions. A boy may know that he wishes a book about animals or mechanics. With this hint, the librarian is able to help him to find what he wishes.

In addition to distributing books from the schools, the library gives special help to the children of the eighth grades. The librarian instructs them in the use of the card catalogue and how to find the books on the shelves in the adult room. They are also taught how to use the reference books so that they may be able to find any extra material which will be helpful to them in their school work. Occasionally an adult has happened to be in the reading room when this instruction was being given, and was enough interested to lay aside the magazine or newspaper to listen.

GOOD BOUTS BILLED FOR PRESENT WEEK

Kid Williams. Bantam Champ, Meets
Kid Herman.—Joe Rivers
Clashes With Beecher.—
Chip vs. Murray.
By Strikas.

Several good bouts are scheduled this week that will attract the attention of the ring fans and aid in settling the middleweight division title, besides living up the game. Tonight Johnny Dundee, the overgrown featherweight, mixes with Willie Beecher for twenty rounds at Vernon, Cal., and knockout Brown tackles Leo Houck for ten rounds at Hammond, Illinois. Beecher recently fought Mexican Joe Rivers, a good twenty-pound draw and New York fans are willing to back him against the best of them. Beecher is a rugged miller and with plenty of ability at swapping punches. Dundee is probably too clever for the crowd, although he is giving him six pounds weight advantage. The biggest match comes Wednesday, when George Chip mixes with Billy Murray at El Paso for twenty rounds. Chip and Murray have met twice before. The first time Murray, an unknown, hung a lucky wallop on Chip the first blow of the battle, surprising the pugilist. They were matched again and Chip won in the fifteenth on a knockout. Both claimed the knockout punches were accidental and the third meet should settle the question.

Kid Williams and Young Herman battle for six rounds Wednesday night at Philadelphia. The Baltimore champion is working in superb form and giving the clever Herman a facin. It is a stranger fact that Williams, a bantam, has bigger hands than the mitts of James Jeffries, and they are more effective. Abe Attell, a superior ring general, will try a come-back stunt, again against Champion Johnny Kilbane in a twenty round mill at Los Angeles, 122 pounds, inside weight on Nov. 1. He, in his time, was without a peer as a boxer, but since he lost his crown has gone back considerably. Like all other champs Attell thinks he can fight as well as ever, but the great truth is that he lacks the stamina, will probably lose to his younger opponent. Attell may have all his cleverness and speed, but age has sapped his strength and punishing skill and gradually the former champ will give way to his conqueror. On Saturday night Joe Rivers and Joe Mandot clash for twenty rounds at New Orleans. This should prove a tough fight, for Mandot, a New Orleans idol, showed his class against Ade Wolzast in Milwaukee recently. Efforts are being made to match Mike Gibbons and Clabby for the Andew's club in Milwaukee in the near future and these two premier "mid-dies" will afford an interesting meet. There are no more clever boxers in the game than these two boys and both are claiming the title. Clabby recently returned from Australia, where he has raised his stock by trouncing McGorty, the Oshkosh hope, in several battles, besides defeating other Antipodes. Charlie White, the self-styled champion lightweight of America, will meet Stanley Yoakum, the caveman before the Kenosha club early in October, and a battle royal is anticipated. White knocked out the western slugger several months ago in the 15th round, after one of the hardest mills in recent years.

Sport Snap Shots

The Athletics are the favorites over the Braves in the approaching world's series, but you can't always tell. It is true that Connie Mack's crowd have the class and speed and from a glance at the dope they should cop. But not every time does class win, especially in a short and furious affair such as the world's series. A team of less brilliant players once stashed on the high clutch may run away with their adversaries even though the latter have more real individual speed. Not infrequently the team with a little momentum behind it is able to grab enough games to win before the bunch with the class gets well started. And in a short affair such as the big encounter in the fall such matters count a lot. Just the same the Athletics will enter the fracas with all the big money behind them.

Clark Griffith, the Washington manager, has instructed his scouts to keep an eye on the sandlots and bush leagues and not look for fast youngsters in the colleges. Griffith has had his best luck in gathering recruits from the sandlots and he plans to go there henceforth for his material. Joe Engel and Jack Bentley, two of the Senators' most promising young twirlers, were found on the corner lots of Washington. And so Griffith believes that it is there that the best of the young players are found.

In a recent magazine story, Christy Mathewson says that "umpire baiting is now a thing of the past." Matty should look about him. Many are willing to show him where he is quite a bit off on his dope. The gentle art has not yet entirely passed away.

Joe Birmingham has been discussing the Naps' chances for 1915, and he has said that his present lineup suits him quite well. There is a feeling in Cleveland that in this matter Birmy's taste is not that of the fans.

It is officially announced in Cincinnati that Charley Herzog will stick there as manager next season. Charley should feel proud of this, as not every manager can last more than one season in Cincinnati. Though the Reds may not finish in the first division, Herzog has made a very agreeable impression on Red fans.

Jawn McGraw muffed one when he released Hank Gowdy, who has provided the Braves with the sweetest sort of catching all season and has been termed one of the sensations of the year.

Bill Bradley, the old-time infield star, is doing quite well as a manager. He has his Brooklyn Red team going at a speedy clip and they are crowding the top of the race.

The American Association is enjoying a warm race, too. Indianapolis, Louisville and Milwaukee are all making it war for one another at the top of the list.

A few months ago Washington ball fans had the pennant picked out for the Senators. They are now agreed that fourth place will do very well.

EX-CARD SHOWS CLASS WITH THE BRAVES

George Whitted.

That George Stallings knew what he was about when he traded Pitcher Hub Purdue for Whitted and Cather, two Cardinal bench warmers, has been amply demonstrated. Because of the cool breezes for which Boston is famed, Purdue, a southerner, was unable to deliver. He has, however, done good work for St. Louis.

On the other hand, Whitted and Cather have helped the Braves to win many a game, while Whitted has shown his versatility by playing in the outfield and also by subbing for Johnny Evers at second base. He makes more errors in a day than Evers does in a week, but he has a keen batting eye and hits 'em where they ain't.

CARDS MEET BELOIT NORTH ENDS SUNDAY

Janesville Team to Have Rough Sled-ding Against Star Aggregation of Leaguers.

Next Sunday, October fourth, the Janesville Cardinals reach the climax of the baseball season when they cross bats with the Beloit North Ends at Beloit in the first of a series of games to settle the championship of Southern Wisconsin. The North Ends vanquished the Van Colts Sunday fifteen to seven, outclassing the Colts in every department of the game.

The North Ends have captured five straight from the Colts, after dropping the first two games, and are playing great ball under the leadership of Eddie Lenahan, former Cardinals sacker. The Cards, if reports are true, are going to go up against a team largely composed of league stars with a hard battery. Eddie Garrity of Beloit, who has finished the season with the Minneapolis Association team, is slated to do the catching with the North Ends against the Janesville team.

Garrity first went to Dayton and despite that this is his first year in league baseball he displaced the regular catcher and was the best sticker on the nine. He was sold to the Cincinnati Nationals but was immediately traded to the Cardinals. Under Cantillon Garrity made rapid strides in the pastime, working in about half of the games and batting like a home alpha. A Beloit boy, Gregory, playing in the fast Central league, is rumored to be the pitcher for the North Ends Sunday against the Cards and Gregory is rumored to have had a good season this year. At third, a weak spot before in the North End aggregation, Cavanaugh, of the Wisconsin-Illinois league will fill the gap. The remainder of the team is uncertain, but the North Ends have plenty of good material to fill the other sacks and outfield. Lenahan played in Sunday's game and local fans know of his ability.

The Cardinals have no plans of playing any "fingers" but will enter the series with their regular lineup, with Cranfall and Hall as the battery. With so much at stake the Janesville team will put forth every effort to trim the Janes City boys and the fans of the entire city are behind them. Three times this season the Cardinals have met the North Ends and each time the locals have come off the field victorious, although one game, the last, at Yost park, was a narrow squeak in a ten-inning battle.

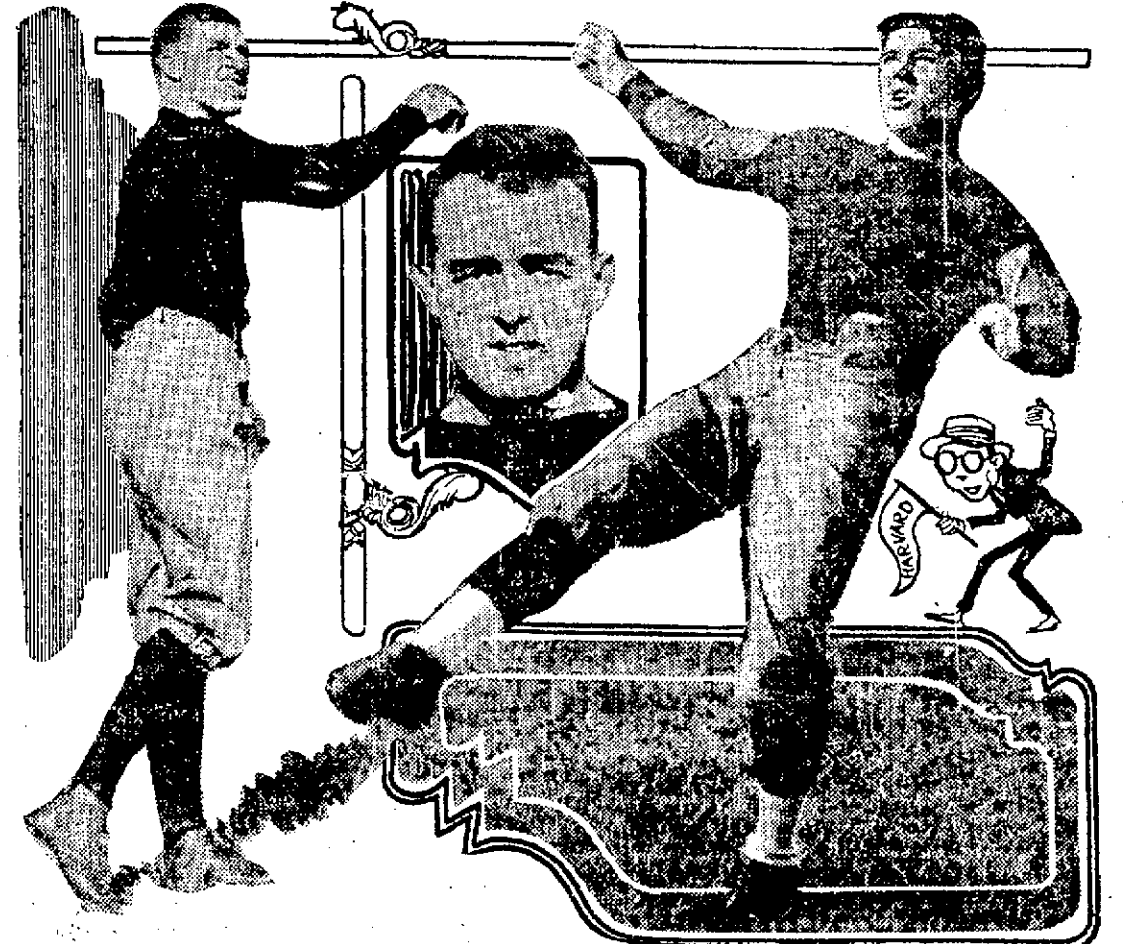

DUNDEE FORSAKES FEATHERWEIGHT RANKS.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 29.—Johnny Dundee will say goodbye to the featherweight division when he enters the ring at Vernon tonight to meet Willie Beecher, the New York lightweight at 133 ringside. Dundee admitted his inability to longers weight in at 122 when his match with Champion Kilbane was called off.

The boys will go twenty rounds with Charlie Epton as referee.

HARVARD TO SET PACE FOR EASTERN FOOTBALL TEAMS; MAHAN, BRICKLEY AND HARDWICK ARE BACK TO HELP THE CRIMSON WIN

Left to right: Mahan, Brickley and Hardwick.

Preliminary football practice is now on in full blast at every big university and college. In the east Harvard promises to set the pace. Her three stars who played most brilliant football last year—Mahan, Captain Brickley and Hardwick—are all back in better form than ever.

Partial Reform. Doctor—"You'll have to cut out some of this wine, woman and song business; it's killing you." Patient—"All right, doc; I'll never sing again."—Wisconsin Sphlox.

Slightly Misunderstood. "I have a perfect horror of embosment," said Mrs. Twigg. "So have I," chirped Mrs. Flinders. "There is always some kind of epidemic threatening our peace of mind."

YOU GET INSPIRATION FROM THAT VIEW DON'T YOU?

YES—I GET INSPIRATION FROM THE VIEW AND COMFORT FROM THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW.

THE AUTHOR KNOWS WHAT'S WHAT

NOBODY wants to put a big, bulgy wad of tobacco in his cheek. All around you, men are using "Right-Cut"—the Real Tobacco Chew. And telling their friends about it, of course—just like you'd tell your friends about a thing that brings so much comfort.

"Right-Cut" is pure, rich, full-bodied tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, out time and short ahead so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in Right-Cut.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

ANOTHER BAD ONE.
In discussing the ten constitutional amendments which the voters of the state are called upon to pass judgment at the coming election, the best way to bring it home to them is to reprint the proposed amendments, show the evils which might arise if they become laws. The following proposed amendment is dangerous in that it brings into play the initiative and referendum. The results of the experiments with the primary law,
the Mary Ann law, the recall provisions, are all too fresh in the minds of the majority of the readers to show the danger of the passage of such a measure. Wisconsin has too long been the experimental station of the ultra progressive element to be further burdened with such a law.
The best way to settle it for good and all is to vote no to it. Kill it, once and for all. The following is the proposed law:

(Jt. Res. No. 4, A.)
JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 22.
To amend section 1, of article IV, of
the constitution, to give to the people the power to propose laws and to enact or reject the same at two polls and to approve or reject at the polls any act of the legislature; and to create section 2, of article IV, of
the constitution, to give to the people the power to propose amendments to the constitution upon the petition of the people.

Whereas, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1911, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That section 1 of article IV of the constitution, be amended to read:

Section 1. The legislative power shall be vested in a senate and assembly, but the people reserve to themselves power, as herein provided, to propose laws and to enact or reject
the same at two polls, independent of the legislature, and to approve or reject at the polls any law or any part of any law enacted by the legislature.
The limitations expressed in the constitution on the power of the legislature to enact laws, shall be deemed limitations on the power of the people to enact laws.

2. Any senator or member of the assembly may introduce, by presenting to the chief clerk in the house of which he is a member, in open session,
at any time during the session of the legislature, any bill or any amendment
to any such bill; provided, that the time for so introducing a bill may be limited by rule to not less than thirty legislative days.

3. The chief clerk shall make a record of such bill and every amendment offered thereto and have the same printed.

4. The proposed law shall be recited in full in the petition, and shall consist of a bill which has been introduced in the legislature during the first three legislative days of the session,
as so introduced, or at the option of the petitioners, there may be incorporated in said bill any amendment or amendments introduced in the legislature. Such bill and amendments shall be referred to by number in the petition. Upon petition filed not later than four months before the next general election, such proposed law shall be submitted to a vote of the people, and shall become a law if it is approved
by a majority of the electors voting thereon, and shall take effect and be in force from and after thirty days
after the election at which it is approved.

5. No law enacted by the legislature, except an emergency law, shall take effect before ninety days after its passage and publication. If within said ninety days there shall have been filed a petition to submit to a vote of the people such law or any part thereof, such law or such part thereof shall not take effect until thirty days after its approval by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon.

6. An emergency law shall remain in force until the next general election, but shall stand repealed thirty days after being rejected by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon.

7. An emergency law shall be any law declared by the legislature to be necessary for any immediate purpose
by a two-thirds vote of the members of each house voting thereon, entered
on their journals by the yeas and nays,
No law making any appropriation for maintaining the state government or maintaining or aiding any public institution not exceeding the next previous appropriation for the same purpose, shall be subjected to rejection,

in case of this section. The increase in any such appropriation shall only take effect as in case of other laws, and such increase, or any part thereof, specified in the petition, may be referred to a vote of the people upon petition.

8. If measures which conflict with each other in any of their essential provisions are submitted at the same time, only the measure receiving the highest number of votes shall stand
as the enactment of the people.

9. The petition shall be filed with the secretary of state and shall be sufficient to require the submission by him of a measure to the people when signed by eight per cent of the qualified electors calculated upon the whole number of votes cast for governor at the last preceding election, of whom not more than one-half shall be residents of any one county.

10. The vote upon measures referred to the people shall be taken at the next election occurring not less than four months after the filing of the petition, and held on a day which shall be ascertained by the secretary of state pursuant to law or specially called by the governor.

11. The legislature shall provide for furnishing electors the text of all measures to be voted upon by the people.

12. Except that measures specifically affecting a subdivision of the state
may be submitted to the people of that subdivision, the legislature shall submit measures to the people only as required by the constitution.

Note: (If adopted, this amendment will change provisions of the constitution which vest the power to make laws exclusively in the senate and assembly, so that the people may directly and on their own initiative
enact laws passed by the legislature.)

A SINGLE TAXER.
Colonel Roosevelt spent a couple of days in Illinois, last week, in the interests of his favorite candidate for the United States senate, Raymond Robbins. Senator Sherman, the republican candidate, replies to the colonel and accuses Robbins of being a disciple of Henry George, and equally as dangerous.

If the progressive party is dependent on this kind of material, in the great state of Illinois, it shows the desperate condition of the party, and the fact that Colonel Roosevelt lends his support to this kind of a man is anything but complimentary to the colonel.

Progress is a good word to conjure
with, and it is not surprising that all kinds of disgruntled citizens gather under the banner of the progressive party. Robbins will not be elected,
but he may succeed in defeating Sherman and electing Sullivan, the democratic candidate. This will be called a success by the colonel, who is just now engaged in a campaign of destruction.

NOT SO BAD.
A financial letter from New York,
under date of September 26, says that
"our exports are steadily rising, the total at New York last week being over $17,200,000, against $14,500,000 a year ago. In the week ending August 22, our exports had fallen to their lowest point, $8,700,000, so that the improvement is somewhat remarkable and decidedly encouraging. In the nine weeks since the war began, the exports from New York have amounted to over $118,000,000, a loss of only about $18,000,000 during that period."

This hardly seems possible, with so many foreign vessels tied up in the New York harbor, yet the figures are correct, as they are taken from the books of the New York custom house.

The demand for American products
is increasing, caused by war in the old world, and our people are not slow in finding some way to meet the demand.
In the face of increasing exports, the democratic war tax seems more unnecessary.

BEAUTIES OF THE PRIMARY
LAW.
The Chicago Herald in discussing
the long ballot used in the recent election, says:

"Nearly two regiments of names
appeared upon the ballots throughout Cook county. A total of 1,375 were found, but perhaps a score or so were overlooked. The exact number cannot be obtained conveniently until the specimen ballots are printed, which probably will take another week."

"From this list of more than four hundred names the voter is expected to designate his choice of candidates for fifty-one offices, all of which pay a salary except three. If he reads forty names a minute, which is more than many voters can do, he will get through in ten minutes. Unless some agency collects and distributes more information than has been made public, the poor voters will not know what to do with many of the names
after he reads them. On the specimen ballots the addresses are given,
but even the location of his residence
is omitted from the official ballot."

"There are so many candidates that even if a voter goes to all of the meetings within ten blocks of his home, it is improbable that he would even see all of the candidates of his particular party. At several meetings
the candidates have appeared, and some of them were not so much as introduced to the audience."

"The political managers have found it impossible to permit every one to speak, and have adopted the plan of having many of the minor candidates
'stand up' so that the audience can get a glimpse of them for a second.
Incidentally some candidates make a much more favorable impression by not speaking."

This is only one of the "beauties"
of the primary law which cost Cook county one million dollars to try out.
"Stung," like every other community
cursed with the law.

DON'T DO IT.
"Buy a bale of cotton," is just now
the national slogan, and the president
has set the pace, followed by his echo, Bryan, by investing $50 in a bale at ten cents per pound. There are two or three reasons why this is poor advice and a poor policy to adopt.

In the first place the stagnation in the cotton market is not due to natural causes, and can not long continue.
It costs ten cents per pound to produce cotton, and the men who own it should be encouraged to hold it, until the market assumes normal conditions.

Cotton is good collateral and there is plenty of money in legitimate transactions of trade to take care of it, and
this will be done as soon as capital
has time to adjust itself to changed conditions.

Buying a bale of cotton is not a deed of philanthropy, but an act of speculation, pure and simple. More than that, it is speculation on the unfortunate grower's necessities. When this is done by Wall street it is cleverly denounced by the government.

The cotton industry is purely a local industry and southern banks and financiers are abundantly able to take care of it, with what aid the government can give them through the emergency currency now being so freely issued.

If Secretary of the Treasury Mc-Adoo will devote a little more time to boosting, than to criticizing bankers,
the cotton situation will clear itself
in legitimate channels, and there will be no occasion for peddling the commodity around the country.

Three hundred and thirty-one cities
in the United States, with a total population of about 8,000,000 are now under commission rule and it is safe to say that none of them could be induced to return to the old system of government. Commission government is the only way to stay, because it is backed by common sense and guarantees a business administration.

A two-reel romance of the Northwest. Bessie Eyton directed. The acting is superb. It holds the interest of the audience strongly. The scenes in the North woods are beautifully photographed. This is a production well worth seeing.

INJUNCTION GRANTED IN WATER RATE CASE

JANESVILLE WATER COMPANY SECURES COURT ORDER HOLD-ING UP NEW SCHEDULE.

DELAY ON VALUATION

Question of Purchase Price Which City Will Pay For Plant Will Be Decided Shortly.

The new schedule of water rates,
determined by the state railroad commissioner for Janesville in 1911, will not go into effect on October 1st as re-ordered by the commission a few weeks ago. Judge Stevens of the Dane county circuit court granted an injunction on Monday in favor of the Janesville water company and against the state railroad commission staying the effectiveness of the rate schedule.

The water company was required to put up a bond of $1000 to cover any damages which may be caused by the delay. Judge Stevens also indicated that if it became necessary this bond
would be increased and that the city might also be required to give a bond to the water company to secure the increased hydrant and water tax which it was required to pay under the order. The entire question of rates is thus held until the valuation
of the company's plant is completed.

City Attorney Dougherty received word today from the railroad commissioner that the further hearing in the valuation proceedings incident to the valuation of the water works of the city, had been postponed and will not take place before Oct. 6. The hearing was originally set for tomorrow and City Attorney Dougherty had made all preparations for the case. The commissioner today that he expected to push the matter through immediately
and asked for an early hearing date.
No reason was given by the commissioner for the delay.

According to city officials the valuation hearing should not last more than a week which will mean a prompt adjustment of the city ownership proposition. The city will have the matter just as rapidly as the calendar of the commission will permit.
In the injunction suit at Madison
yesterday the Water Company was represented by Mr. G. Harris and O.
Oestreich and the commission by Deputy Attorney General Walter Drew. The city was not a part to this action.

END A BUSY MONTH AT DENTAL CLINIC

Dispensary at City Hall Is Well Patronized During First Month—Review of Work Done.

The first month of the free
dental clinic which is being conducted at the city hall makes certain the fact that the dispensary fills a long felt want. Judged on the basis of dollars and cents the dentists donating their services have completed work between fifty and sixty dollars. The report of the first month's work shows
a record of thirty-four amalgam fillings, four cement fillings, two cases
of tooth cleaning and six extractions. Several patients have teeth still under treatment and will soon be ready for root fillings.

The utmost care is taken of the children so that they will be willing to return for another treatment, and the fact that patients treated have returned promptly at the appointed time
indicates the character of the work done.

The best of skill and material is combined since the work of one dentist will be inspected by the next dentist to be in charge of the clinic. History sheets are being used to simplify treatment so that the dentist serving today may know just what has been done at previous appointments.
The record also shows the conditions for each tooth under treatment. Each treatment is recorded on a card which with chart of the teeth is provided and an accurate account is being kept showing just what is done each month.

Each dentist serving has now had his turn at the clinic and the strangeness of the new office will be less for the following month and the work will progress with more despatch. The dentists and all interested in the clinic
trust that the clinic has already proved its value and that its success
is now assured.

WAR PROFITS BREWERING INDUSTRY IN MILWAUKEE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 29.—One of the leading industries of Milwaukee will profit largely by the war. The brewing industry, according to figures made public here today, The Babst brewery announced that it had shipped a train load of beer to the Western coast to be shipped on to Australia.

Australia has heretofore depended upon Germany for its beer and Americans firm had little chance of breaking into the game. The Americans now say that they will have a chance to create a demand for their particular mixtures of hops and barley and will win a permanent trade.

BIG OREGON RODEO ENTERTAINS HUNDREDS.

The Dalles, Ore., Sept. 29.—With
the opening here today of the annual Oregon rodeo, the country's greatest amateur wild west shows, thousands of visitors and townspeople were being regaled with roping and broncho busting contests. The show will continue for four days.

In connection with the Rodeo, the Wasco county fair is also being held.
On account of the being of the show,
hundreds of former citizens
are here attending the celebration.

MUNICIPAL OFFICERS MEET IN MILWAUKEE

American League of Municipalities
Opens Eighth Annual Convention
in Milwaukee Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 29.—John J.
Ryder of Omaha, president of the American League of Municipalities,
opened the eighth annual convention of that league in the city council chambers here today by reviewing the work of the organization in the past year.

Mr. Ryder, who is commissioner of sanitation and public safety at Omaha, Nebraska, responded to the welcome
of Mayor G. A. Bading of this city and in the course of his talk touched on the work of the city commission in his home city. He also outlined the program for the four days session
for which over 400 city officials of various grades have gathered.

All the regular sessions of the league are to be held in the council chamber of Milwaukee's big city hall.
However there was much enthusiasm and almost as large a gathering at the Flisker hotel where the city officials made their headquarters.

Today some of the visitors were initiated into the life which came in for a share of the state vice commissioner's investigation last spring—the beer halls and amusement places.
Some of the delegates came from dry towns but that did not prevent their enjoying the sightseeing trip. Besides the visits to beer gardens, they will be trips through the breweries and some of the city's manufacturing plants. The engineers particularly were interested in the trip to the new sewerage plant at the foot of Milwaukee river and the new intake crib which has just been fired over the mouth of a half-mile tunnel under the bed of Lake Michigan.

The fire chiefs had what they termed an enoyable time in inspecting the ramifications of the fire fighting systems. They and the other delegates were to be taken in a joy ride around Milwaukee bay in the fire tugs before
the close of the session.

The program which faced the city heads today was varied. This afternoon they plunged into the work of earnest. Martin Behrman, mayor of New Orleans, told of sewerage water
and drainage in his city and Calvin Henrichs, of Baltimore, told of the same sort of work in his more northern city. The ambitious plans for the new sewer system in Milwaukee were explained by T. Chalkley Hutton, engineer of the sewerage commission.
Fred C. Simmons, commissioner of public works here told of the city's needs of rehabilitating pavements.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHEN INCONSISTENCY WINS.

TO FORM an opinion and to stick to it is commonly held to be a laudable trait. What faith can we have, asks the consistent man, in the solid-ity of a man who says one thing today and another thing tomorrow; who was a republican last year, a progressive this year and who will, who was a republican last year, a socialist next year? One can never place him in all probability as a woman. He can never take rank in our minds with the sterling old gentleman who says, with pardonable pride, "I've voted the republican ticket straight for fifty years."

It is the lack of this same admirable consistency that is supposed to be the commonest of feminine faults. It is a woman's prerogative, we are told, to change her mind. It is likewise proof, we are assured, of her in-considerateness and lightness of mind. Such processes do not behoove a man. If a man says something, let him stick to it. Otherwise he is less than a man.

If a man says a thing today and we can look back and recall a time when he said something quite differ-ent, we have laid him low. We have him at our mercy. How can he make both statements meet? Eureka, we have him!

The victim of our thrust, at a loss, is laughed down and out.

The very consistency of human nature on this point carries its own inconsistency. We adopt an opinion and subscribe to it. We give it out as our opinion. It becomes something sacred, something to be fought for and defended against onslaught; something to hold to. To do otherwise would be to admit that we were for-merly wrong. To admit that we have been wrong is un-tenable. It lays us open to the attacks of our ene-mies.

But why not view the question in its larger aspect? We are living and presumably progressing. We are re-ceiving new impressions, assembling new facts; gaining experience. What we thought yesterday was limited by what we then knew. Today the situa-tion may have changed. We have lived and thought. If our progress has strengthened our belief in the truth of our old opinion, so much the better. If it has not, even better still. We have progressed, we have discarded an untruth we believed to be true.

Why should a man at any time in his life, map out and adopt a perma-nent opinion? When should he do it—at thirty, forty, fifty or seventy? Why should he say, "I know now as much as I ever shall." To do so is equivalent to saying, "I shall never know more." And that is to condemn oneself to mental stagnation.

Told to your opinions as long as they are worth holding to; then abandon them. The march of human progress is marked with the milestones of the beliefs the world once held and has since abandoned. And each of these milestones has been the scene of a struggle between the old order and the new. The new marches on; the old fell behind.

Every human life should be similarly marked. I think it was Ibsen who said, "Each of my plays has marked a point of my life. At each of these points people have since gathered. But I am not there—I am still marching ahead."

If your opinion today be changed from your opinion of yesterday, say so. It is the kind of inconsistency that wins. To hold the same opinion at fifty as you did at thirty—that is poor consistency.

The Awakening of Peggy

LXXXIV.

Mildred's Chance Acquaintance Proves to Be a Gay Lothario.

Peggy and some of her friends had gone to a summer amusement park to dance. There was a large crowd about, as usual, but the members of Peggy's party kept to themselves and almost forgot that they were surrounded by jostling strangers.

Left to herself for one dance, while her partner went to look up some refreshments, Peggy stood at one end of the pavilion waiting and watching the whirling dancers.

"Hello, there, little one!" came a voice at her ear. Peggy took no notice. She felt that no one she knew could be addressing her in this manner.

"By the way," continued the young man, "is your next dance taken?"

Peggy remained inattentive.

"Oh, say, now!" remonstrated the young man, "don't be frosty. This isn't a cold day. Can't you be a little more friendly? Nobody's going to bite you." The stranger had assumed a bantering tone.

Peggy looked around guardedly. She was surprised to observe that

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girl friends fifteen years old and are together constantly.

(1) Is it wrong to go home from a class party with a boy friend the same age?

(2) A boy friend has a five-passenger auto and a chauffeur drives the car. If we girls, our boy friends and the chauffeur should go riding, how should we sit?

(3) We both have dark hair and blue eyes, fair complexion. What colors are most becoming?

(4) One of us is five feet seven inches tall; the other five feet four inches. How long should we wear our dresses?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Before rolling a jelly cake up dampen a napkin with warm water, wring dry and then cover with a sheet of paraffin paper. Turn the cake on this paper and roll quickly. The cake is not apt to break as it is rolled.

Paint marks on glass may be removed by rubbing with a paste of whitening and ammonia, thinned with water to the consistency of cream. Leave the past on, and when it is dry, wash off with soap and warm water.

To avoid poisoning don't use meat unless it is absolutely fresh; never attempt to freshen it by washing with salt, soda, etc.

When cleaning rugs and carpets with ammonia and water, try a wool cloth to wipe them instead of cotton.

THE TABLE.

Hot Water Gingerbread—One cup molasses, one cup boiling water, one-half cup sugar, two and one-quarter cups flour, or enough to pour batter one teaspoon at a time. Beat eggs, add sugar, molasses and water. Add flour and soda to molasses. Mix and add dry ingredients. Combine mixtures. Add egg well beaten, and last of all, add butter. Beat mixture vigorously. Pour into buttered pans. Bake fifteen to twenty minutes in moderate oven.

Pineapple Salad—Slice a thoroughly ripe pineapple very thin and cut out the core with a tiny pastry cutter. Spread one side of each slice with peanut butter, mixed with meringue and a little maple. Place slices together, decorate the top slice with petals cut from pimento pepper and place a ball of cheese in the center of each salad. Serve on leaves of crisp, blanched lettuce with mayonnaise or a sweet salad dressing.

Apple and Cheese Salad—This is a simple but very wholesome, nourishing luncheon salad to serve now. Use ripe, good eating apples of a juicy variety. Pare, core and cut in strips and blanch in cold, acidulated water to make firm and white. Swiss cheese may be used, cut in strips or rather thin chips. Mix carefully heap on head of lettuce and serve with French dressing made with celery or tarragon vinegar. A little orange, grape fruit or white grapes will combine with this salad.

Steamed Apple Pudding—Two cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter, three-quarters cup of milk, four apples cut in eighths, sift the dry ingredients, work in butter, with tips of fingers, and the milk gradually, mixing with a knife; toss on floured board, put and roll out, place apples on middle of the dough, in a sprinkle with one tablespoonful of sugar mixed with one-fourth teaspoonful each of salt and nutmeg; bring the dough around the apples and carefully lift into buttered mould or five-pound crock pot, or apples may be served over the dough, and the dough rolled like a jelly roll; cover closely and steam one hour and twenty minutes; serve with vanilla or cold sauce.

Catsup—Boil one bushel of tomatoes, cut up six or ten onions (if small, use ten); when boiled well, let cool off and strain; add to one gallon of tomatoes strained, one pint vinegar (color), two cups brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls salt, five cents' worth of mixed spices (whole, put in cloth). Boil catsup from three to four hours.

Sweet Cucumber Pickle—Slice water thin two cups of small cucumbers, buke, and was surprised half a minute later to run across Mildred Green.

"Look out for that man you met in the picture theater," she warned. "I don't like his ways. He just tried to flirt with me, and suppose he does the same every time he gets a chance."

Peggy walked away to allow her friend to administer the deserved re-buke, and was surprised half a minute later to run across Mildred Green.

"Just one dance, begged the stranger persistently. 'Be a good fellow and dance the next with me.' 'Is this person annoying you?' broke in Peggy's escort, who had come up in time to see what was going on. 'Just leave him to me.'" to have gentlemen company; but if no other arrangement had been made it was kind of the boy to see you home. Arrangements for getting home should be made. Often several girls live in the same neighborhood, or your father or brother should come after you.

(2) The boys might take turns sitting on the back seat with the girls.

(3) With a clear complexion most colors will be becoming.

(4) Wear your dresses to your shoe tops.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man with confidence that his deeply in love with a girl my age. I work at the same place with this girl and see her all day long and also twice a week in the evenings. She is also deeply in love with me and I know she thinks everything of me. However, we have a little quarrel every once in a while, which lasts for just about a day or less, and I think it comes from seeing each other too much. Now would you advise going steadily with this girl and becoming serious with her or not?

"HOPEFUL."

If you see too much of each other

old world seems able to hand out to us; she was thankful for the health that made her success a reality, and from the rules of life of ease she built again a life, serene, successful, content.

In the same town dwelt another woman to whom came the very self-same catastrophe. She was given a small annuity by relatives and was thus able to put up a strong defense between herself and caring care. She knew not the meaning of sordid struggles; the vain attempt to make one dollar do the work of two; the soul sickening struggle that so often grinds out the very best in man or woman. She also turned to the self-same friends that the first woman turned to—but she turned to them to whine and rail at fate; to declare that she was going to end it all; that the degradation of her present position was too much for her; borne by a woman of her temperment. You simply could not tell her that she might be much worse off; that she should try to unravel the tangled skein of her life, piece it up and go forward. That way of talking fell on deaf ears. She was misused, she blamed everyone living, then with a charming impartiality she turned to the giver of life and blamed him. Always she ended her tirade—she would end it all. She left one half fearful that she really might.

If she had journeyed to some of our orphan homes and brought back with her a little child, that were it not for her, would never know the better of a real home; if she had put in her time in raising a baby, in fitting just one little waif in the use of a citizen, would there be time left for her to saunter down dim ways of the lonely past, to keep alive her selfish sorrow?

A Lame Back—Kidney Trouble Causes It.

It don't take long for kidney and bladder trouble to give you a lame back, and even worse if not checked. Mrs. J. T. Gray, Gainesville, Ga., was fairly down on her back with kidney trouble and inflamed bladder. She says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills and now my back is stronger than in years, and kidney trouble and painful bladder sensation have entirely gone. Good druggists are glad to sell Foley Kidney Pills because they always help. They contain no habit forming drugs. W. T. Sherer.

now, you surely could not stand the strain of seeing more marriage would bring you constantly together. This will be a fair test of your love, I think. Eliminate the quarrels. If you are unable to do so there is but one conclusion to arrive at. You do not love each other enough to wed, for, be sure, with all the strain and worry of life to face together there will be more to quarrel about than now if you allow yourselves to dot it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) The young man I am engaged to is awful jealous. Do you think he loves me enough to make me his wife?

(2) I am 5 feet 3 inches tall, weigh 120 pounds. Is that too much?

(3) One has brown hair, blue eyes, full face. How should she wear her hair? The other has dark hair and brown eyes, face more oval. How should she wear her hair?

(4) If a young man lives in another town, writes to a girl and is with her whenever he can be and says he doesn't go with any other girl, do you think he cares for her?

MARIE AND MILDRED.

(1) Jealousy by some is considered a sign of love. In reality it is an indication of a lack of trust. If a young man has confidence in his fiancee cares more for him than any one else he will not be jealous. A jealous husband can and generally does make a wife very miserable. If he cannot trust her before marriage, how assurance has she that he will do so after the ceremony is performed?

(2) That is about the right weight.

(3) It is difficult to tell what would be becoming without seeing the girl. Usually coronet braids are becoming to a round face. "Pomps" are becoming to most everyone.

(4) The greatest compliment a young man can pay a girl is to seek her society. If he sees as much of her as possible and writes to her, he must at least be interested.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—No Wonder Father Couldn't Remember

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The Last Shot

By FREDERICK PALMER

(Copyright, 1914, by Charles Scribner's Sons)

But would one? He understood that with their smokeless powder the Gray guns could be located only by their flashes, which would not be visible unless the refraction of light were favorable. Then "thur-eesh—thur-eesh" above every other sound in a long wall. No man ever forgets the first crack of a shrapnel at close quarters, the first bullet breath on his cheek, or the first supporting shell from his side in flight that passes above him.

"That is ours!" called Dellarme.

"Ours!" shouted the sergeant.

"Ours!" sang the thought of every one of them.

Over the Gray batteries on the plain an explosive ball of smoke hung in the still air; then another beside it. "Thur-eesh—thur-eesh—thur-eesh," the screaming overhead became a gale that built a cloud of blue smoke over the offending Gray batteries—beautiful, soft blue smoke from which a spray of steel descended. There was no spotting the flashes of the Browns' guns in order to reply to them, for they were under the cover of a hill, using indirect aim as nicely and accurately as if firing pointblank. The gunners of the Gray batteries could not go on with their work under such a hail-storm; they were checked. They stopped firing and began moving to a new position, where their commander hoped to remain undiscovered long enough to support the 128th by losing his lightnings against the defenders at the critical moment of the next charge, which would be made as soon as Fracasse's men had been reinforced.

There was an end to the concussions and the thrashing of the air around Dellarme's men, and they had the relief of a breaking absence in the ear. But they became more conscious of the spits of dust in front of their faces and the passing whistles of bullets. In return, they made the sections of Gray infantry in reserve rushing across the levels, leave many gray jumps behind. But Fracasse's men at the foot of the slope poured in a heavier and still heavier fire.

"Down there's where we need the men now!" spoke the thought of Dellarme's men, which he had anticipated by a word to the signal corporal, who waved his flag one—two—three—four—five times. Come on, now, with more of your special brand of death, fire-control officer! Your own head is above the sky-line, though your guns are hidden. Five hundred yards beyond the knoll is the range! Come on!

He came with a burst of screams so low in flight that they seemed to brush the back of the men's necks with a hair broom at the rate of a thousand feet a second. Having watched the result, Dellarme turned with a confirmatory gesture, which the corporal translated into the wigwag of "Correct!" The shrapnel smoke hanging over Fracasse's men appeared as a blue to Dellarme's men. "They are going to start for us now! Oh, but we'll get a lot of them!" whispered Stransky gleefully to his rifle.

The Gray batteries on the plain, having taken up a new position and being reinforced, played on the crest at top speed instantly the Gray line rose and started up the slope at the run. With the purpose of confusing no less than killing, they used percussion, which burst on striking the ground, as well as shrapnel, which burst by a time-fuse in the air. Fountains of sod and dirt shot upward to meet descending sprays of bullets. The concussions of the earth shook the aim of Dellarme's men, blinded by smoke and dust, as they fired through a fog of bent figures whose legs were pumping fast in dim pantomime.

But the guns of the Browns, also, have word that the charge has begun. The signal corporal is waiting for the gesture from Dellarme agreed upon as an announcement. The Brown artillery commander cuts his fuses two hundred and fifty yards shorter. He, too, uses percussion for moral effect.

Half of the distance from the foot to the crest of the knoll Fracasse's men have gone in face of the hot, sizzling tornado of bullets, when there is a blast of explosions in their faces with all the chaotic and irresistible force of a volcanic eruption. Not only are they in the midst of the first lot of the Browns' shells at the shorter range, but one Gray battery has either made a mistake in cutting its fuses or struck a streak of powder below standard, and its shells burst among those whom it is aiming to assist.

The ground seems rising under the feet of Fracasse's company; the air is split and racked and wrenched and torn with hideous screams of invisible demons. The men stop; they act on the uncontrollable instinct of self-preservation against an overwhelming force of nature. A few without the power of locomotion drop, faces pressed to the ground. The rest fled toward a shoulder of the slope through the instinct that leads a hunted man in a street into an alley. In a confusion of arms and legs, pressing one on the other, no longer soldiers, only a mob, they throw themselves behind the first protection that offers itself. Fracasse also runs. He runs from the flames of a furnace door suddenly thrown open.

The Gray batteries have ceased firing; certain gunners' ears burn under the words of inquiry as to the cause of the mistake from an artillery commander. Dellarme's men are hugging the earth too close to cheer. A desire to spring up and yell may be in their hearts, but they know the danger of showing a single unnecessary inch of their craniums above the sky-line. The sounds that escape their throats are those of a winning team at a tug of war as diaphragms relax.

With the smoke clearing, they see 20 or 30 Grays plastered on the slope at the point where the charge was checked. Every one of those prostrate forms is within fatal range. Not one moves a finger; even the living are feigning death in the hope of surviving. Among them is little Peterkin, so faithful in forcing his refractory legs to keep pace with his comrades. If he is always up with them they will never know what is in his heart and call him a coward. As he has been knocked unconscious, he has not been in the post-mortem retreat.

His first stabbing thought on coming to was that he must be dead, but no

he was opening his eyes sticky with dust. At least, he must be wounded! He had not power yet to move his hands in order to feel where, and when they grew alive enough to move, what he saw in front of him held them frigidly still. His nerves went searching from his head to his feet and—miracle of heaven!—found no point of pain or spot soppy with blood. If he were really hit there was bound to be one or the other, he knew from reading.

Between him and the faces of the Browns—yes, the actual, living, terrible Browns—above the glint of their rifle barrels, was no obstacle that could stop a bullet, though not more than three feet away was a crater made by a shell burst. The black circle of every muzzle on the crest seemed to be pointing at him. When were they going to shoot? When was he to be executed? Would he be shot in many places and die thus? Or would the very first bullet go through his head? Why didn't they fire? What were they waiting for? The suspense was unbearable. The desperation of overwhelming fear driving him in irresponsible impulse, he doubled up his legs and with a cat's leap sprang for the crater.

A blood-curdling burst of whistles passed over his head as a dozen rifles cracked. This time he was surely killed! He was in some other world! Which was it, the good or the bad?

The good, for he had a glimpse of blue sky. No, that could not be, for he had been alive when he leaped for the crater, and there he was pressed against the soil earth of its bottom. He burrowed deeper blissfully. He was the nearest to the enemy of any man of the 128th, and he certainly had passed through a gamut of emotions in the half-hour since Eugene Aronson had leaped over a white post.

"Confound it! If we'd kept on we'd have got them! Now we have to do it all over again!" growled Fracasse distractedly as he looked around at the faces hugging the cover of the shoulder—faces asking, "What next? each in its own way; faces blank and white; faces with lips working and eyes blinking; faces with the blood rushing back to cheeks in baffled anger. One, however, was half smiling—Hugo Mallin's.

"You did your share of the running. I'll warrant, Mallin!" said Fracasse excitedly, venting his disgust on a particular object.

"Yes, sir," answered Hugo. "It was very hard to maintain a semblance of dignity. Yes, sir, I kept near you all the time. Wasn't that what you wanted me to do, sir?"

Three or four men burst into a hysterical laugh as if something had broken in their throats. Everybody felt better for this touch of drollery except the captain. Yet, possibly, it may have helped him in recovering his poise. Sometimes even a pin-prick will have this effect.

Dinner Stories

He was a long-suffering traveler on a little single-track railroad, and he complained bitterly about the lateness of the train and the irregularity of the service. The employee remonstrated in virtuous indignation. "I've been on this here line, sir," he began, "upwards of eight years, and—"

"Have you, indeed?" interrupted the traveler, sympathetically. "At what station did you get on?"

Emma, queen-mother of the Netherlands, is the subject of many stories in her own country, where the people adore her.

During the time when she acted as regent before the present Queen Wilhelmina came of age, it is said that one morning Queen Emma was awakened by a peremptory knocking at her bedroom door.

Europe's Armageddon and the Last War

By H. G. WELLS

And on that sentence, with an unexpected artistry, Barnett abruptly ends his story.

From the first the new government handled affairs with a certain creativeness of spirit. Indeed, it was inevitable that they should act greatly. From the first they had to see the round globe as one problem; it was impossible any longer to deal with it piece by piece. They had to secure it universally from any fresh outbreak of atomic destruction and they had to insure a permanent and universal pacification. On this capacity to grasp and wield the whole round globe their existence depended. There was no scope for any inferior performance.

So soon as the seizure of the existing supplies of atomic ammunition and the apparatus for synthesizing kryptonium was assured, the disbanding of social utilization of the various masses of troops still under arms had to be arranged, the salvation of the year's harvests and the feeding, housing and employment of the drifting millions of homeless people. In Canada, in South America and Asiatic Russia there were vast accumulations of provision that was immovable only because of the breakdown of the monetary and credit systems. These had to be brought into the famine districts very speedily if entire depopulation was to be avoided, and their transportation and the revival of communications generally absorbed a certain proportion of the soldiery and more able unemployed. The task of housing assumed gigantic dimensions, and from building camps the housing committee of the council speedily passed to constructions of a more permanent type. They found far less friction than might have been expected in turning the loose population on their hands to these things. People were extraordinarily tamed by that year of suffering and death; they were disillusioned of their traditions, bereft of once obstinate prejudices; they felt foreign in a strange world and ready to follow any confident leadership. The orders of the new government came with the best of all credentials, rationed. The people everywhere were as easy to control, one of the old labor experts who had survived until the new time witnesses, "as gangs of emigrant workers in a new land."

And now it was that the social possibilities of the atomic energy began to appear. The new machinery that had come into existence before the last wars increased and multiplied, and the council found itself not only with millions of hands at its disposal, but with power and apparatus that made its first conceptions of the work it had to do seem pitifully timid. The camps that were planned in iron and deal were built in stone and brass; the roads that were to have been mere iron tracks became spacious ways that insulated upon architecture; the cultivations of foodstuffs that were to have supplied emergency rations, were presently, with synthesizers, fertilizers, actinic light and scientific direction, in excess of every human need.

The government had begun with the idea of temporarily reconstituting the social and economic system that had prevailed before the first coming of the atomic engine, because it was to this system that the ideas and habits of the great mass of the world's dispossessed population was adapted. Subsequent rearrangement it had hoped to leave to its successors—whenever they might be. But this, it became more and more manifest, was absolutely impossible. As well might the council have proposed a revival of slavery. The capitalistic system had already been smashed beyond repair by the onset of limitless gold and energy. It fell to pieces at the first endeavor to stand it up again. Already before the war half of the industrial class had been out of work. The attempt to put them back into wages employment on the old lines was futile from the outset—the absolute shattering of the currency system alone would have been sufficient to prevent that—and it was necessary therefore to take over the housing, feeding and clothing of this worldwide multitude without exacting any return in labor whatever. In a little while the mere absence of occupation for so great a multitude of people everywhere became an evident social danger, and the government was obliged to resort to such devices as simple decorative work in wood and stone, the manufacture of hand woven textiles, fruit growing, flower growing and landscape gardening on a grand scale to keep the less adaptable out of mischief and of paying wages to the younger adults for attendance at schools that would equip them to use the new atomic machinery. So quite insensibly the council drifted into complete reorganization of urban and industrial life, and indeed of the entire social system.

CHAPTER XIV.

A New Common Social Order.

IDEAS that are unhampered by political intrigue or financial considerations have a sweeping way with them, and before a year was out the records of the council show clearly that it was rising to its enormous opportunity, and partly through its own direct control and partly through a series of special committees it was planning a new common social order for the entire population of the earth. "There can be no real social stability or any general human happiness while large areas of the world and large classes of people are in a phase of civilization different from the prevailing mass. It is impossible now to have great blocks of population misunderstanding the generally accepted social purpose or at an economic disadvantage to the rest." So the council expressed its conception of the problem it had to solve. The peasant, the field worker and all barbaric cultivators were at an "economic disadvantage" to the more mobile and educated classes, and the logic of the situation compelled the council to take measures. It was the supersession of this stratum by a more efficient organization of production. It developed a scheme "or the progressive establishment throughout the world of the 'modern system' in agriculture, a system that should give the full advantages of a civilized life to every agricultural worker, and this replacement has been going on right up to the present day. The central idea of the modern system is the substitution of cultivating guilds for the individual cultivator and for cottage and village life together. These guilds are associations of men and women who take over

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not sleep, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live."

Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefited by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."

They are bodies small enough, as a rule, to be run on a strictly democratic basis and large enough to supply all the labor, except for a certain assistance from townspeople during the harvest, needed upon the land farmed. They have watchers' hungalows or chalets on the ground cultivated, but the ease and consciousness of modern locomotion enable them to maintain a group of residences in the nearest town with a common dining room and clubhouse and usually also a guild house in the national or provincial capital.

On The Spur of The Moment

The Wild West Show Indian. Poor! To sit tailor fashion out in front of his sun-burned topees. A stolid remnant of a mighty race of western Indians to contempt was written on his swarthy face. As he gazed meditatively into the sky's unbounded space. We knew not whether he was old or middle aged or merely young. And dared not pass our salutations, thinking he knew not our tongue.

What dreams of conquest on the plain must surely rest within that look! If we could interview this brave, we know that we could write a book.

To gaze upon this simple child, untutored in our modern ways. Brought back to mind the memories of what we'd read of Cooper's days. We stood and marveled at this man, perhaps much longer than we ought; We had but one idea in mind and that to try and read his thought.

"What thinkest thou, oh, simple child?" we summoned up the nerve to ask. He turned around and gazed at us, as though it were a tiresome task. "I'll tell you, kiddo," answered he, "my mind is quite a bit of distraught. About a cooling system for a new automobile I've bought. I've had nine automobiles now and worn them all right down to junk. And I'm determined this time not to let them hand me any bunk."

The moral of the tale is this, that gaudy feathers and much paint are very frequently put on to make things seem like what they ain't.

Signs of the Times. Judging by recent events, Napoleon, Hannibal, Alexander, William the Conqueror and all the Caesars were pikers.

Mount Lassen of Red Bluff, Cal. may erupt and shed plumes, but she won't get more than a stick inside. Now that all the horses have gone to the front, what will Paris do for its usual brand of "beefsteak"?

Gifford Fincher, isn't doing as much talking as he did awhile back. He is married now.

The only trouble with Mr. Carnegie's plans is that they seem to have worked out backward. The Yermans have taken the Yermans island on Yap.

The Statesman Pursued. Oh, Democratic congressman. We envy you not your lot. We do not look with greedy eyes upon the snap you've got.

No horde of office seekers camps upon our porch at night. To tackle us with phony claims. On the rest streak of light.

They do not dog our footsteps when we arble down the street. We do not find them neath our bed. Or hid behind the teet.

They do not put us in a hole until our mind is frayed. Reminding us of promises. That we have never made.

Oh, Democratic congressman. You're welcome to your job. We're satisfied to plod along. The same old common slob.

According to Uncle Abner. A motion picture manager always has real shows. Gossip is like a cat. It never comes to a feller in a straight line; also, it has nine lives.

There are many hair-owing details in a woman's toilette. What has become of shirtwaists for men?

Anse Higgins was going home from the Golden Nugget the other night when he saw a feller sneak in around and tryin' the windows in Lem Purdy's house. The constable and the fire department were notified and after a desperate struggle in the dark, the man was captured. When they got him to the calaboose they found the culprit was none other than Lem Purdy himself, who had got a case where he wouldn't let him into the house, thinking he was some burglar.

If it is anything that makes a feller feel that he is growin' old fast it is one of them big calendars that show only one date at a time. Every time he looks at it he has to yank off another five days to catch up.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"After the Ball." The Motion Picture News says: "Herbert Kelsey and Edna Shannon have often demonstrated their abilities before the footlights and now in this photo drama they prove that they are equally at home before the camera. It is essentially a picture of society life, a film dramatization of the sentimental tear-bringing songs by Charles K. Harris, but there are many incidents and scenes just the reverse of sentimental.

There is a bold jump from Highbridge into the Harlem river, a leap from a speeding motorcycle onto a flying train, and another jump from a train crossing a trestle over the river, all worthy of a circus dare devil. The travels through various lands show the photographer a chance to show his skill in reproducing strange and unusual scenes and these lend variety to a film that cannot by any means be charged with monotony. At Myers theatre, with full orchestra accompaniment for three days, beginning Monday, Oct. 5. Usual matinee and evening performances at 2:00 and 7:00. Evening 7:15 and 9:00.

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Squaw Man." When Jesse L. Lasky decided to produce the international stage success, "The Squaw Man," he decided to produce it at the Apollo theatre. He picked out the local of the play and took his company there. It has been produced with all his characteristic attention to detail and a result, a most interesting presentation of a complete story. What was not possible on the stage has been accomplished with the camera. Therefore, in the six parts there are 264 separate scenes. The tale is familiar to all. A young, dashing English officer, in order to save the family of his sweetheart from disgrace, caused by an act of her brother, he comes to America under the name of Jim Carston. Here he meets and is saved from death on various occasions by an Indian maid. He marries her and becomes known as the squaw man. The story is very graphically told in the motion pictures which will be shown at the Apollo Wednesday afternoon and evenings.

Merry Minstrel Men. Beginning Thursday for a four days' engagement comes on all's favorite, the Merry Minstrel Men, a complete program of sweet singers, funny comedians, good music, clever dancing and a big, free street parade. A regular dollar show at vaudeville prices.

PROTEST AGAINST KILLING OF PIGEONS IN ENGLAND

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) London, Sept. 29.—During the height of the spy and espionage excitement in the British island some one seems to have urged that all carrier pigeons be shot whenever seen. But correspondents by the score have sprung to the defense of the birds. They point out that the breeding of racing pigeons is a well developed industry and the sport itself almost a national pastime. Says one writer in the London Field:—

"Great misconception seems to be abroad as to the danger of so-called carrier pigeons to any sensible man. The danger is removed by the police restrictions and the fact that birds, fly, practically speaking, only usefully in one direction (i. e., that in which they have been trained for release). The danger of birds being released, say, in Lancashire, in order to convey aliens or enemy's information to the Continent is almost nil. Such birds to be of the slightest value would have to be continentally trained and ready to fly the distance in the right direction, and it is absurd to suppose that aliens wishing to communicate with one another in England should use the cumbersome and risky method of the pigeon. So far as is known, the British Post Office is still open to carry the message for a penny or by telegram."

SAVES HIS TEMPER

Valuable Machine to Hardware Man in Handling Wire Netting.

The hardware man is compelled to keep a stock of wire netting on hand and to sell it in such quantities as his patrons may desire for the demand for this commodity is more or less constant, but the workman almost hates to hear anyone ask for wire netting because of the trouble of measuring and handling it. It is as wriggly as the proverbial eel, and almost as slippery, but the net of handling it is complicated by the many sharp points which jab themselves in the face and clothing of the unfortunate person who is called to manipulate the length of wire.

There is being introduced into hardware stores a device to save the hardware man's temper.

MEASURES AND ROLLS WIRE NETTING.

ware man's temper in an apparatus which draws the wire from one roll, measures it and rolls it up into another compact roll for the customer to carry off. It will handle all widths from one to six feet, and does the work so efficiently that several wire fence customers may be waited on in the time heretofore required for one. The hardware man has nothing more to do than to lift the roll on the machine and reel it off through the action of a crank. The measuring is done automatically.

How Tunes Are Built

The mystery of music never just "came naturally" to any human being. The world has never known a more industrious worker than the illustrious Franz Schubert. Yet, if to any one in the world music "came naturally"—it seemed to come so to him. When the school principal asked his harmony teacher how young Franz Schubert was progressing, the teacher said: "He is a wonder. Whenever I explain anything to him, he always seems already to know it. He must have received his knowledge straight from heaven. Yet in spite of such superb gifts, there was never a hard worker than he. And don't you think that we, with our lesser gifts, should follow his example? If he, with all his heaven-sent genius, could not succeed without strenuous daily labor, how can we hope to accomplish anything worth while, without ceaseless, patient and conscientious toil?"—The Study of Music, in Woman's World.

Sleep-Walkers

Many years ago an archbishop of Bordeaux attested the case of a young ecclesiastic who was in the habit of getting up during the night in a state of somnambulism, and, taking pen, ink and paper, composing and writing his sermons. When he finished one page he would read and correct it. In order to ascertain whether the somnambulist made use of his eyes the archbishop held a piece of pasteboard under his chin to prevent his seeing the paper upon which he was writing, but he continued to write on without being in the least inconvenienced. It is related of Negretti, a sleep-walker, that he would sometimes carry a lighted candle, as if to give him light in his employment, but on a bottle being substituted he took it and carried it without apparently noticing the difference.

LADIES' HAIRDRESSING IN LONDON AND PARIS By Constance

When I was in Europe this year I found both cities so thickly dotted with hairdressing parlors and hair goods stores that I wondered if the women ever had time for anything but care of the hair. Personally I was chiefly interested in finding a really good shampoo and I found that they never use makeshifts but always some item made for shampooing only, and I was happily surprised when several inquiries each brought the suggestion that our own American made canthrox shampoo is best. They like it because in addition to being perfectly safe and making the hair free from all dandruff, excess oil and dust, it is so simple to get canthrox from any druggist and just dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, knowing you will then have a preparation that makes the hair not only entirely clean, but so fluffy that it appears very heavy. Canthrox stimulates the scalp to healthy action, making the head feel good, and the hair look good.

Best Laxative For Children

When your baby is cross and fretful instead of the happy, laughing little dear you are accustomed to, in all probability the digestion has become deranged and the bowels need attention. Give it a mild laxative, dispel the irritability and bring back the happy content of babyhood.

The very best laxative for children is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, because it contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant tasting and acts gently, but surely, without gripping or other distress. Druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 461 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

The time was spent at games until 6:30 when a sumptuous birthday supper was served. Miss Elizabeth was the recipient of several books and a kodak book from her friends.

Child's Constancy.

If only we realized it, if only we cultivated it more, we could see with clear-eyed vision that all of a child's original nature breathes constancy. It is an essential strength of the undeveloped child's nature to be constant. Not until our own false examples have attacked the natural purity of the child does it become inconstant—unreliable.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

TELLTALE CREAM PUFFS

By AGNES CRAMER.

Ever since she was a child and had known the pleasure of standing in front of a baker's window and allowing her fancy to play about the cream puffs and the pies, the wonderful jelly rolls and the mysteriously named "ecairs" she had regarded the bakery business as one of the most fascinating of all. They called the shops "bakeries" in those days and her joy received a check when she was obliged to cope with the strange name "delicatessen," that was later applied to them. It was a much finer sounding word, and there could be nothing too fine to apply to an occupation that concerned itself with the sweets of existence.

She and her brother kept house together in a tiny apartment in a part of Chicago where bakeries were as thick as blackberries. And when blackberries are very thick you become fastidious about them and learn to know the ripe and juicy ones at sight. So she came to be quite a connoisseur in things culinary and knew a creamy éclair at first glance much as a naturalist knows all about a plant or shrub before he stops to analyze it.

It was not that she had a gastronomical imagination or was anything of a gourmand. In reality it was more the esthetic phase, the artistic side of these creations that pleased her and she was content with very limited portions for herself. But she and her brother really lived on bagged things and what Stevenson once said regarding tinned food might be applied to food in bags—"man cannot live by bags alone."

But her brother made no complaint and if "home cooking" was rare with them at least she saw to it that their bagged bread and buns were not too "bakery." She searched diligently for the shops that offered puffs of a "homey" flavor much as a botanist looks for his favorite specimens. To come upon a delicatessen shop that was just opening gave her as much joy as the flower lover experiences at the sight of the opening violet. She and her brother talked over the different varieties of cream puffs that she secured and discussed seriously the question as to which shop was most worthy of their patronage.

But one evening for his dessert he was presented with a cream puff that, as he remarked, "did not look good to him," for it had an appearance far below their standard in such delicacies. So he demanded of his sister, who was responsible for this culinary crime:

"Why, don't you think they have a kind of homey taste?" she asked, with some embarrassment.

"Yes," he replied, "if by 'homey' you mean something flat and pasty."

"You see," she explained, "the man who keeps the shop where I bought these lost his wife about a year ago and he says that she always made the filling for his cream puffs and that the secret of the filling died with her. I felt so sorry for him that I could not help buying them even though they did not look quite as nice as some we have had."

"Well," answered her brother, "I feel sorry for the gentleman myself, but my sympathy does not go so far as to compel me to eat puffs filled with flour paste flavored with vanilla."

The next evening the sister gave him with his dessert of sliced bananas some lady fingers purchased from the bereaved baker, but the brother declared that they were unworthy of their name. She showed so much resentment of his criticism that he saw she had allowed sentiment to mingle with her culinary judgment and he trembled for his future desserts.

For a long time, however, he heard no more of the unhappy baker. His sister continued to offer him impeccable puffs from a well-known and high-priced delicatessen shop.

But one evening after a delicious home-cooked supper she brought out some chocolate eclairs, which, like Pope's monster, vice, were of such hideous mien that to be hated they needed but to be seen.

After one mouthful he remarked, sourly: "I think I recognize this particular paste. You have gone back to that detestable delicatessen fellow, the culinary criminal."

"But he's improved," she declared with warmth. "Your taste is not delicate enough to distinguish the change."

"No, it is not," he answered, "and I wish the gentleman would get another wife, one who has some knowledge of puffs."

"I think he has one in view," she answered shyly. Then she blushed in quite an extraordinary way.

Falls to Catch Falling Baby. Patrolman Tuttle, on duty in West One Hundred and Thirty-first street, saw a baby climbing on a window sill of the five-story apartment house at 535 West One Hundred and Thirty-first street, and in danger of falling, reports the New York Sun. He was 40 feet away when the child tumbled, and he was still too far away to catch it as it fell.

The baby was Leonard Marklin, two years old, son of Edward Marklin. Mrs. Marklin saw her husband coming up the street, and went to a rear room to get her pocketbook to have her husband get something from the store. In her absence the baby climbed on the window sill to see its father, fell, and was killed.

Mr. and Mrs. Marklin were over-come and had to have the services of a physician.

Blue Nose. Blue Nose is a popular name for a native of Nova Scotia. The Americans have, in consequence, given them the nickname 'Blue Noses.'"

Sounded Funny.

The following true story gives a delightful glimpse of a very little child. The baby, who was just beginning to prattle, was taken to walk in an orchard where some bantams were turned loose. One perky little bird stood right in the child's path, craned his neck and uttered a shrill "Cock-a-doodle-doo." The little girl bent down her head so as to be as near the level of the bird as possible and then lisped in the most pleading voice: "Please will you say that again?"

NAVAL WARFARE NETS BIG LOSS OF SHIPS

TWELVE BRITISH VESSELS HAVE BEEN SUNK BY GERMAN CRUISERS SAYS ADMIR-ALTY REPORT.

A LIST OF DISASTERS

More Than Twenty Sea Fights Have Resulted in Destruction of Thirty Warships—German Loss
Fourteen.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Sept. 23.—Twelve British ships with an aggregate tonnage of 50,000 have been sunk on the high seas by the German cruisers up to September 23, according to an admiralty report issued on Monday. Eight other British ships have been sunk by German mines in the North sea, and four fishing crafts have been captured or sunk in the same water.

On the credit side the admiralty
states that 100 German ships with a total tonnage of 200,000 detained in British ports since the outbreak of the war
have been captured or sunk in the same water.

The action also shows 168 German ships captured since hostilities began.
Fifteen ships were detained in American ports, while fourteen others
were captured in the Gulf of Mexico.

The German mines in the North sea
have also to their credit seven Spanish ships with a total of 11,098
tons.

Twenty-eight fighting vessels of three nations—Great Britain, Germany and Austria—are known to have been destroyed since the beginning of the war. There have been unconfirmed reports of other losses, but those quoted here are all officially admitted.

Germany has been the greatest sufferer, fourteen of her ships having been sunk.

Great Britain has lost nine fighting
ships—seven cruisers, one auxiliary
cruiser and one submarine.

Austria has had five of her fighting ships destroyed—three cruisers and two torpedo boats.

Twelve of the fighting vessels sunk
have been twice that number of merchantmen sent to the bottom by torpedoes or mines, and doubtless several hundred captured by all the combating nations.

Following is a chronological list to date of the ships of war destroyed:

August 5—German cruiser Panther sunk in the Mediterranean, near Bona, Morocco, by French cruiser.

August 6—British cruiser Amphion sunk by a German submarine in the North sea.

August 6—German mine-layer, Koenigstein, sunk by British destroyer Hector.

August 7—German cruiser Augsburg sunk in Baltic sea by Russian torpedo boat.

August 8—German submarine U-15
sunk in North sea by British cruiser Birmingham.

August 11—German cruisers Breslau and Goeben lost to Germany by taking refuge in Adriatic, where they were sold later to Turkey.

August 16—Two Austrian cruisers
sunk by French warships off Budua, Dalmatia.

August 17—Austrian torpedo boat
No. 10 sunk by mine off Pola, in Adriatic sea.

August 22—Austrian cruiser Zrinyi
sunk by French ships in Adriatic sea.

August 27—German cruiser Madge-burg destroyed by Russian warships
in Gulf of Finland, after running ashore.

August 27—German auxiliary cruiser Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse sunk by British cruiser Highflyer, off coast of Africa.

August 28—German cruisers Mainz,
Kon and Ariadne disabled and sunk,
three German destroyers sunk, and seven others damaged, by British destroyer and cruiser fleet off Heligo-land.

September 7—British cruiser Pathfinder sunk by mine or submarine in North sea.

September 9—British auxiliary
cruiser Oceanic ashore on north coast
of Scotland, total loss.

September 13—German cruiser Hele sunk by British submarine E-9, off Heligoland.

September 14—Austrian torpedo boat No. 27 sunk by mine in Pola harbor.

September 14—German auxiliary
cruiser Cap Trafalgar sunk by British auxiliary cruiser Carmania, off
east coast of South Africa.

September 19—British (Australian) submarine AE-1 lost (presumably by accident).

September 20—British cruiser Pegasus disabled by German cruiser Koenigsberg, in Zanzibar harbor.

September 22—British cruisers Cressy, Hogue and Aboukir sunk by German submarines in the North sea.

HOW A DEAD HAMLET
WAS MADE LIVE ONE.

Windsor, Vt., Sept. 23.—Once upon a time, about a year ago to be exact
this village nestled beneath Mount Ascutney along the Connecticut river,
was a real dead-and-don't-know-it-or-
don't-care-an-thing New England hamlet.

Today it is still a village, but it flourishes, thanks to three men with ideas in their heads. These men were George O. Gridley, general manager of the Windsor machine company, Frank L. Cone, superintendent, and the late millionaire, Maxwell Davis.

They saw that Windsor didn't look good to a group of high class, live, skilled mechanics, drawn necessarily from large cities. There was nowhere to go or nothing to do. And the employees couldn't get anything much in the way of hotel or home accommodations. The situation was getting critical. The machine works needed steady workers, but the forty degrees
below zero temperature of a New England winter, plus the usual frigid-
ity of New England village social life,
drove away just the class of men that the company needed.

What to do? That was the question.
Then they hethought themselves of their old mill, abandoned in the march of progress and prosperity.
Why not convert it into a clubhouse and hotel, they argued? To think with them was to act.

Today the Windsor Club is a reality,
and its chief occupants are well-paid
contented workmen of the Windsor mill. Occasionally tourists step there for Windsor is not overburdened with hotels.

The old mill is now a clean, up-to-date club house with rooms and baths
for practically every worker. Down stairs there is a large assembly room,
and a sun parlor. To the rear are bowling alleys, pool tables, reading
table, and dance hall.

Every Wednesday night the club has a dance. Some of the workers are married and live at the club, but the female dances for the most part come from the town of Windsor and adjacent places. In this way, Windsor's social barriers have been broken down. The New England village has lost its frigidly in the cosmopolitan atmosphere of a club
that gathers a group of clean, wholesome American citizens.

No longer are the workmen tired of the village. It furnishes enough diversion for them through the club,
and through the social friendships to which this institution has given rise.

PRESIDENT'S ENVOY BACK FROM MEXICO

Paul Fuller.

Paul Fuller, President Wilson's
personal envoy to Mexico, returned from that troubled country last week
and made a secret report to the president. While he would not talk for publication, it is understood that his sympathies are with Villa rather than with Carranza.

BELGIANS MINISTER TO GERMAN UHLAN WOUNDED IN DASHING RAID INTO OSTEND

(c) Underwood & Underwood

In a dashing raid into the very heart of Ostend, Belgium, a division of Uhlans were severely repulsed. The photo shows one of the Germans engaged in the raid, wounded in an encounter on the outskirts of the city, being carried from the auto which conveyed him into Ostend for medical treatment. Belgian officers received and ministered to the wounded man from the enemy's ranks.

CARRYING STARS AND STRIPES, AMERICAN RESIDENTS OF PARIS JOIN FRENCH ARMY

Although President Wilson has made every effort to maintain the neutrality of the United States in the present war, American residents of Paris have organized a volunteer regiment to fight with the French army.
Members of this regiment, carrying the stars and stripes, are here seen in the Place de la Opera en route to the Palace of the Invalides, their drilling place.

JANESVILLE COMBINED MERCHANTS FALL STYLE SHOW OPENING, OCTOBER FIRST, SECOND, THIRD.

Great exposition of new styles from Hart Schaffner & Marx for men and young men

Here's the best we've ever done for the men of this city;
The most comprehensive display of fine clothes ever brought together;
better fabrics, better colorings, better patterns; and
more interesting styles and new models than ever.

You are invited

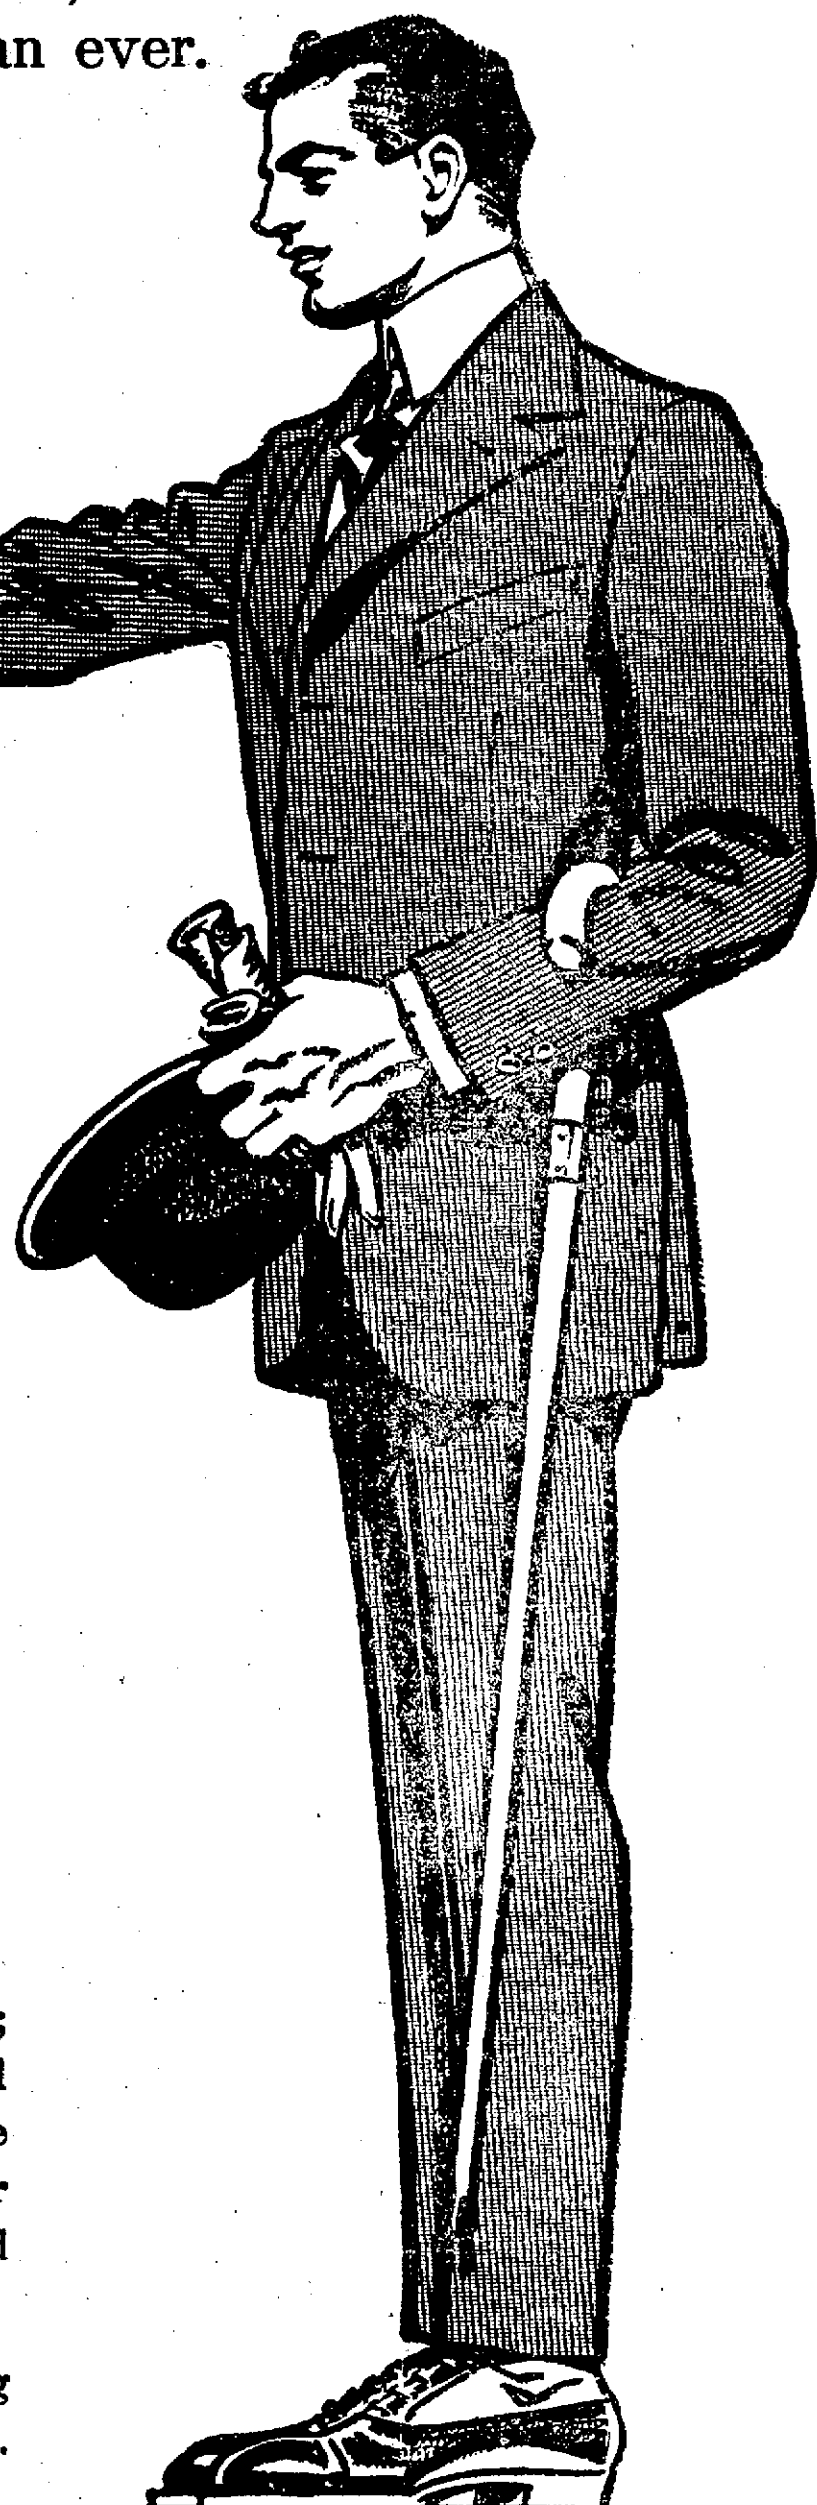

Our effort has been to bring together a lot of fine clothes for the use and benefit of the men and young men who dress well. In one sense, you may say that we've done this for the benefit we shall get from it; from selling the goods for our profit.

But in another sense—there is another and better sense—we've done it for the benefit you'll get out of it. We expect to sell at a profit to us; but we also expect you to buy at a profit to you. That's really the true basis for business success; it's the way we look at our business; we'd like to have you look at it that way.

Hart Schaffner & Marx
clothes are made in that spirit;
and we sell them that way.

See the new tartans and chalk line weaves; the new pencil stripes; see the new foreign and domestic worsteds, tweeds, chevots, serges; see the new and rich overcoat fabrics. Look over the striking new models, specially designed for young men.

It's your show as well as ours: we're helping you to have the best clothes made; come and see.

A visit of a few moments to these departments will quickly prove to you that nowhere else can you find such an endless variety to select from, nor values that can begin to compare with ours.
